What Can Go in Your Rented Dumpster?

Knowing exactly what is allowed in your rented dumpster avoids surcharges, rejected pickups, or fines. Here's a breakdown of typical categories accepted by D.E.M.M. DUMPSTERS LLC and most reputable Virginia Beach roll-off services:

1. Household Junk Dumpster Contents

If you rent a household junk dumpster, you can dispose of the following common items:

- Old furniture (couches, tables, chairs)
- Appliances (washers, dryers, microwaves - check local refrigerant removal requirements)
- Boxed or bagged personal items
- Broken toys, carpets, and mattresses
- Discarded electronics (non-hazardous, no batteries)
- General household garbage

Note: Electronics with batteries or hazardous fluids usually require special disposal methods—check with your rental company for these exceptions.

2. Yard Waste Dumpster Contents

Yard waste dumpsters are great for the green debris you accumulate during landscaping or cleanup:

- Grass clippings
- Leaves and branches (typically up to 6-inch diameter branches)
- Tree trimmings
- Plant roots and soil (in limited amounts—ask your provider)
- Other biodegradable plant material

Important: Avoid putting dirt, stumps larger than 6 inches, or construction debris in your yard waste roll-off unless explicitly allowed.

3. General Trash Roll-Off Dumpster Contents

A general trash roll-off dumpster is designed for mixed construction debris and everyday trash, but there are still limits on what you can toss:

- Drywall pieces
- Wood scraps (painted and untreated)
- Concrete, bricks, and block (in reasonable amounts; often requires a specific construction dumpster)
- Packaging material (cardboard, plastic wrap, foam peanuts)
- Old carpeting and padding
- Non-hazardous household trash

Tip: Hazardous items like paint cans, batteries, tires, asbestos, and chemicals are generally forbidden and require specialized disposal.

What NOT To Throw in a Rented Dumpster

Avoiding banned materials can save you from unexpected fees or rejected pickups. D.E.M.M. DUMPSTERS LLC explicitly prohibits the following:

Prohibited Item Reason
Paint, solvents, and chemicals Illegal hazardous waste, environmental risks
Asbestos-containing materials Federal regulations require special handling
Tires and auto parts Special recycling programs exist
Fluorescent bulbs and batteries Toxic elements require separate collection
Explosives, ammunition, fireworks Safety hazards
Medical or biological waste Requires licensed hazardous disposal

Choosing the Right Dumpster Size

Getting the right dumpster size matters to avoid paying for wasted space—or having to book a second dumpster mid-project. Here's a quick checklist for common sizes from D.E.M.M. DUMPSTERS LLC that match typical household or yard projects:

1. 10 cubic yards: Ideal for small cleanouts or minor yard waste; fits about a pickup truck load of debris.
2. 15 cubic yards: Works well for medium-sized remodeling projects or full garage cleanout.
3. 20 cubic yards: Suitable for large room remodels, deck tear-outs, or major yard overhauls.
4. 30 cubic yards: Designed for whole house renovations or roofing debris from average-sized roofs.
Dimensions approx. 22 ft long x 8 ft wide x 4.5 ft high.
5. 40 cubic yards: Largest option for commercial jobs or extensive demolition projects.

Pro tip: Measure your largest waste items and your total debris volume—10 yards = roughly the volume of three standard washing machines stacked together.

Weight Limits and Overage Charges

This is where many renters run into trouble—the dumpster might seem big enough, but weight limits are strict and fees for overages are steep. D.E.M.M. DUMPSTERS LLC clearly posts their weight limits per dumpster:

Dumpster Size Weight Limit (Pounds) Typical Materials Limit 10 cubic yards 2,000 lbs Light debris, household junk
15 cubic yards 3,000 lbs Mixed trash, light construction debris 20 cubic yards 4,000 lbs Lumber, roofing material, drywall 30 cubic yards 6,000 lbs Heavier construction debris

Beware of: Overfilling past the fill line—visually gauging the weight isn't enough. A dumpster filled to the brim might exceed the weight limit with denser materials like concrete or roofing shingles.

Overage Fees: Exceeding weight limits usually results in a per-ton fee, often $50-$80 per 1000 pounds above the limit. This is where specifying your debris type and consulting your dumpster provider beforehand saves you a big headache.
