

High-rise moves come with a unique set of challenges that a typical house move does not involve. Elevators, loading docks, and building policies all need to be factored into the plan well before moving day. Columbus OH Movers experienced with high-rise buildings know how to navigate these details efficiently.

Coordinating with Building Management

Most high-rise buildings require advance notice to reserve freight elevators or loading docks for moves. Manifest Movers in Columbus OH contact building management directly to confirm these reservations and understand any specific rules, like designated moving hours or required certificates of insurance.

Skipping this step can lead to significant delays if the elevator is unavailable or the building denies access on moving day.

Managing Elevator Time Efficiently

Since freight elevators are often shared with other residents or building services, time slots can be limited. Manifest Moving Company plans loading and unloading in an order that makes the most of the available elevator time, moving efficiently between the truck and the unit.
