

In addition to its 1-to-1 violin lessons, LVL Music Academy offers group classes and ensemble opportunities for students who benefit from the social and musical stimulus of playing with others. String ensemble playing is a fundamental part of a well-rounded violin education, and LVL's programme reflects this understanding. Playing in an ensemble develops musical skills that solo practice cannot provide: listening to other parts, balancing within a group texture, following a conductor or section leader, and developing the rhythmic precision that ensemble playing demands. Students who participate in LVL's ensemble and group activities typically show accelerated development in their overall musicianship. For families who are choosing between LVL and other violin shops and academies in Singapore, the availability of group and ensemble playing at LVL adds a dimension of musical development that purely individual lesson-focused programmes cannot match. The combination of quality individual tuition and ensemble experience Discover more is what produces well-rounded musicians.
